

Short-term consultant positions (M/F)

Epicentre recruits epidemiologists on a regular basis to conduct short-term consultancies (3 to 5 weeks average duration) in Epicentre's areas of expertise.

These include:

- Rapid health assessments in emergency situations
- Epidemic outbreak investigations
- Evaluation of health programs and health needs
- Implementation and evaluation of epidemiological surveillance programs
- Prevalence surveys
- Training activities in public health and epidemiology

For such positions, Epicentre will consider candidates with the following qualifications:

- Medical Doctor or post-graduate degree in public health and epidemiology (MPH, MSc, or equivalent)
- At least 3 years of related work experience, such as public health experience in humanitarian contexts or developing/low income countries
- Excellent written and oral communication skills
- Proficiency in English or French. Additional languages also an asset.
- Proven capacity to adapt to difficult field conditions and work autonomously
- Availability on short notice

On an exceptional basis, Epicentre may recruit candidates with other qualifications, such as nurses or lab technicians, to work on specific projects. Candidates with a strong epidemiological background and field experience are encouraged to apply.

Consultants should apply through the online system linked through the Epicentre website. Candidates will receive an email confirming receipt of the application. The CV of validated candidates will be retained on file for 2 years for potential deployment.

If you have any technical problem to apply, please contact: recrutement@epicentre.msf.org